Arnold Bennett

is probably the most successful writer of fiction today. His mature work in these last three published novels more than fulfils the brilliant promise of his earlier books.

His Last Three Novels

Hilda Lessways

The Hilda seen so tantalizingly through Clayhanger's eyes in the first volume of the great Five towns trilogy. "An unusual but not an inconceivable woman," who dominates Mr. Bennett's latest novel with power and distinction. $1.50 net

Clayhanger

The story of a sensitive boy's development into the stature and responsibilities of manhood. "A significant book, marvelous in its minute detail and brilliant in the general effect of its execution." $1.50 net

Denry the Audacious

A book in Mr. Bennett's less serious vein, the history of the adventures of a resolute social climber. "Calculated to enliven the most jaded novel reader." $1.35 net

Published by E. P. DUTTON & CO. New York

A Romance of the Canadian Mounted Police

PHILIP STEELE

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

Author of The Danger Trail

The young hero, son of a Chicago millionaire, tired of the close life of the cities, joins the Royal Mounted Police, and earns the name of always bringing in his man.

Philip Steele easily contains Mr. Curwood's best work. The style is vivid, the action spirited, the scene picturesque, the characters spontaneous and human.

NEW BOOKS

Norman Duncan

The Measure of a Man

"The Measure of a Man" is Mr. Duncan's first full-sized novel having a distinct motif and purpose since "Dr. Luke of the Labrador." "A clear picture of the rough life of the logging camp. Altogether it gives one a measure of manhood such as is not often found in books of fiction."—Minneapolis Journal.

Illustrated, net $1.25

Robert E. Knowles The Singer of the Kootenay

"Mr. Knowles has written his best book. He strikes the 'human interest' note in a most effective way. You may shed tears now and again; but it will pay to shed them; for in 'The Singer of the Kootenay' you have a glimpse of what manhood may be."—Book News Monthly.

Cloth, net $1.20

Wilfred T. Grenfell, M.D. Down North on The Labrador

A new collection of Labrador yarns by the man who has succeeded in making isolated Labrador a part of the known world. Like its predecessor, the new volume, while confined exclusively to facts in Dr. Grenfell's daily life, is full of romance, adventure and excitement.

Illustrated, net $1.00

Prof. Edward A. Steiner The Broken Wall

Stories of the Mingling Folk

Professor Steiner, author of "On the Trail of the Immigrant," has the story-teller's knack. In this collection will be found tragedy and pathos in strong contrast with keen humor and brilliant wit, all permeated by an uncompromising optimism.

Rupert Hughes

Author of
"Excuse Me"

Miss 318

"A short story, but has more genuine human nature in it than most novels of twice the price."—The Independent.

"A novelette which all Christmas shoppers ought to be compelled by law to read. Miss '318' is a character not to be forgotten."—Chicago Tribune.

Clara E. Laughlin Author of "Every-body's Lonesome" The Gleaners

A Novelette

Again Miss Laughlin has given us a masterpiece in this story of present day life. Millet's picture, "The Gleaners," is the moving spirit in this little romance, and incidentally one catches the inspiration the artist portrays in his immortal canvas.

Illustrated, net 75 cents

Harold Begbie

Author of
"Twice-Born Men"

The Shadow

A new story by the novelist whose study of regeneration, "Twice-Born Men," has made the world fairly gasp at its startling revelations. His latest work is careful and even brilliant study of modern life, which, while it entertains, its definite purpose is to elevate and inspire.

Cloth, net $1.25

J. J. Bell

Author of
"Wee MacGregor"

The Indiscretions of Maister Redhorn

"Here's a delightful Scot! A rare old bachelor he is with his stiff ways, his tender heart, his loquacity, and his pearls of wisdom that so frequently drop from his lips as he discourses to Wullie, his apprentice."—New York Times.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Charles Lee Bryson

Woodsy Neighbors of Tan and Teckle

Illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull

Further adventures of "Tan and Teckle" and their tiny neighbors in field and forest, with whom the "little citizens" come in daily contact. The author fascinates children with his tales of minute creatures as has "Uncle Remus" with his Bre'r Rabbit, Bre'r Fox and other forest dwellers.

SOME OPINIONS ABOUT IT

"A tale which is sound as a ripe apple and real as the quaint, old daguerreo-types in the attic trunk, and which manifests natural, convincing admixture of pathos and humor, tragedy and commonplace happenings, 'pure human' nature and the higher thoughts and emotions that sometimes transform it. Only, if you happen to like good and modest literature—read 'Basset,' that's all."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"A book one welcomes and shares with others for its pure delight, its human appeal, and its literary quality."—N. Y. Tribune.

"Very seldom do we receive a book which gives such genuine pleasure in the reading and compels such unqualified admiration for its style and structure throughout as 'Basset.' This simple story is marked with some of the finest qualities of literature. * * * No finer bit of work, in its own class, has come under our notice in a long time."

Hiawatha — (Player's Edition)

HENRY W. LONGFELLOW

Introduction by FRANK W. GUNSAULUS, D.D.

A beautiful edition illustrated with unusual photographs by Grace Chandler Horn. Taken from life among the Ojibwas, they give us the very characters, the very scenes so beautifully sung in Longfellow's poem. Minnehaha, Hiawatha, as a baby, a child, and man; the beautiful woods; "the luminous water" are brought before us with startling and life-like vividness. The natural theatre is also shown in which, as a play, Hiawatha was so remarkably given by full-blooded Ojibwa Indians not so long ago over the Canadian border. From this representation the edition takes its name. Frontispiece of Minnehaha and eight full pages tinted. Fifty-six half-tones. Cloth (boxed) $2.00

A BOOKSELLER'S BOOK

A BOOK THAT NEVER CAN BECOME DEAD STOCK

FOR LOVERS AND OTHERS

By JAMES TERRY WHITE

is a Bookseller's book, for it is full of new and unique selling features, which only need to be shown to effect a sale. A saleslady in Wanamaker's sold 63 copies last week, in the dulllest of seasons, and the head of the department is enthusiastic over its selling qualities. A Corset dealer on Fifth Avenue sold 20 copies in two weeks. The three Printers who set it, the dealer who supplied the Paper, and the Box maker, purchased copies. EVERYBODY WHO LOOKS INTO THE BOOK WANTS A COPY. They buy one copy to give to a friend, and another copy to keep.

NOTE THE NEW SELLING POINTS

For All Occasions

FOR LOVERS AND OTHERS is a delightful book of exquisite verse commemorating the Affection days throughout a lifetime. There are EIGHTY such Occasions. It is a Gift Book of Daily Happenings, such as Weddings, Birthdays, Graduation Days, Partings, Consolation for the Death of a Friend, The Birth of a Child, Friend to Friend Greetings,—as well as the Formal Anniversaries, like Easter, Christmas, Thanksgiving, etc. It is like a Bouquet of Flowers picked especially for every Occasion. But the Author promises that while

*"A Rose blooms only for a few short hours,
The Roses from THIS BOOK will never fade."*

Its Personal Touch

There is personal touch and significance given to the book by having a beautiful Bookmark personifying Affection, to indicate the special Occasion the donor wishes to commemorate. It says:

*O generous Giver, I would point the Way—
Thy Heart would lead—
To WHERE—commemorating a Fair Day—
Thy Friend will find Rose Thoughts, that, haply, may Grace present need.
O dear Recipient, through all this maze
I show the GOAL,
To which Affection would direct thy gaze,—
If, haply, thy Heart's Need may find a phrase
To feed thy Soul.*

Something New

A novel embellishment is the Sky and Cloud background to the Verse showing the gradual change of coloring from "Dawn to Sunset." The last glimmer of color fades with the Verse.

*The Day is done, and the Shadow
Steals slowly across my heart:—
BUT WE SHALL MEET IN THE MORNING,
And meet never more to part.*

What the Book Is

The setting of the book is a Poem in itself. It is a marvel of beauty, not only for the elegance of its exterior which lures the book lover, but in its exquisite heart-moving Verse, which is full of quotable lines which one immediately desires to send to his friends. All know how hard it is to write a letter of consolation, and would welcome a satisfying word to send to a bereaved friend. The flavor of the book is indicated by the Hyacinth Verse on the title page.

*If thou of fortune be bereft,
And in thy store there be but left
Two leaves,—sell one, and with the dole
Buy Hyacinths, to feed the soul.*

And there are many of such verses, which keep singing in the heart, recalling delightful memories. The entire book is a delight, and the secret of its delightfulness may be summed up in two of its lines:

*"How can I ever be alone
When MEMORY remains?"*

The author plays upon the chords of tenderness with rare touch and has produced a book, which fulfills its avowed purpose "to prepare for Heart Memories an abiding place, to which it may charm them back, and perchance betray them to captivity."

A Clever Device

In a Sextet at the end of the Book the Author divulges the secret for whom the Verses are written:

*For whom are these Rose-Verses made?
Ought one a woman's heart parade—
Reveal the secret here concealed?
Yet all, her worthiness will yield,
Once her identity is seen
Under this Acrostic's screen.*

Customers That Buy

How to Gather Them In

BOOKSELLERS are naturally interested in methods of attracting buyers—ways of holding the old ones, means of securing new ones—especially during the holiday season.

An outlay of ten, twenty, or even fifty dollars, is not a very large sum to spend in order to attract the attention of the best buyers to your display. The money might easily be wasted in ineffective local advertising or in pithless circulars, but it can be used to the greatest direct advantage by sending the "CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF" (a digest of all the important new books of the year of the leading publishers) with your exclusive imprint on the cover, to the people of means and position in your vicinity. It is by far the best holiday list that is issued anywhere, and the recipient always feels flattered in receiving a copy.

THE CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF (which is the Christmas Number of The Publishers' Weekly on somewhat thinner paper) is supplied in lots of 100 at 10 cents each; 250 at 8 cents; 500 for $38.00; or 1000 for $75.00.

 If you want a supply we must hear from you promptly as we print only for advance orders. We can promise delivery by the end of November.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY have now ready a holiday edition of "Basset, a Village Chronicle," by S. G. Tallentyre. The book is handsomely decorated and printed in two colors with a frontispiece by C. M. Burd.

E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY are the publishers of Arnold Bennett's three last novels. "Denry the Audacious," "Clayhanger," "Hilda Lessways," in which the brilliant promise of his earlier books is more than fulfilled.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD COMPANY are the publishers of the famous Pepper Books, of which there are a round dozen that have delighted many children, and will continue to do so. Each volume is illustrated, and dealers should see that they have them in stock, as they are always popular Christmas gifts.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have ready "American Addresses," by Joseph H. Choate, a collection of addresses delivered in America during a period of nearly fifty years, 1864 to 1911; and an illustrated edition of Robert Hichens's "The Spell of Egypt," intended for use as a guide book.

DANA ESTES & COMPANY will publish in December, "China: The Country and Its People," by G. Waldo Browne, with an introduction by the Hon. John D. Long. The book will be profusely illustrated with over 300 illustrations, and in view of the interest now being aroused by the revolution in that country, the work should have a large demand.

FROM Fleming H. Revell Company we have received "Down North on the Labrador," a new collection of Labrador yarns by the man, Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, who is making that isolated land a part of the known world; and "The Broken Wall," by Professor Edward A. Steiner, stories of tragedy, humor, all permeated with optimism, with the emigrants the author knows so well as chief actors.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY call the attention of the trade to the "Barbara Pack-age Band," which they will furnish free to dealers. It is especially designed for making up an attractive package of "The Winning of Barbara Worth," and is decorated with a picture of the heroine. They also have ooze calf slip covers for the book, making it into a gift edition which should prove a good seller during the fall season.

A GIFT-BOOK of daily happenings describes James Terry White's "For Lovers and Others," a volume of delightful verse commemorating the "affection days" throughout a life-time. Weddings, birthdays, graduation days, partings, consolation for the death of a friend, greetings from friend to friend, all have appropriate quotations. An attractive book-mark accompanies the book. Frederick A. Stokes Company, Baker & Taylor Company, New York; A. C. McClurg & Company, Chicago, or Cunningham, Curtiss & Welch, San Francisco, will supply the trade.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL COMPANY have published "Chosen Days in Scotland," by Josephine Helena Short, a book which will suit the needs of the tourist and also is so readable that the stay-at-homes will also enjoy it and its many illustrations; "Opera Synopses," by J. Walker McSpadden, an invaluable book both for opera-goers and for the large class living outside of the great cities who wish to be conversant with the standard productions; "The Best English and Scottish Ballads," selected by Edward A. Bryant; and "Best English Tales by English Writers, selected by Adam L. Gowans, are two uniformly bound and made up volumes whose titles explain their scope.

Adams, H:

The life of George Cabot Lodge. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, '11. (N4) c. 206 p. D. $1.25 n.

A sympathetic life of Lodge, in which many of his letters are quoted and his development and temperament are studied. The book is issued in uniform style with the two-volume edition of Lodge's poems and dramas.

Addison, Alb. Christopher.

The romantic story of the "Mayflower" pilgrims, and its place in the life of to-day; with numerous original illustrations. Bost., L. C. Page, '11. (N4) c. 14+192 p. O. $2 n., boxed.

Author relates the wonderful and romantic story of the Pilgrim Fathers—that group of earnest, God-fearing men from Scrooby and its neighborhood who, for conscience' sake, refused to adhere to the established church, suffered imprisonment in the old town of Boston, and finally, after many hardships, escaped to Holland to found a new community in the city of Leyden. What led them to venture to the New World, the trials and hardships of the voyage and the privations and struggles of the little colony at Plymouth are set forth. Space is also given to the history of that other group of men driven from England for conscience' sake, whose home was old Boston and who became the Puritans of the new Boston of Massachusetts Bay.

Additional exercises for Pitman's shorthand commercial course; a series of original exercises on every rule in the systems, specially compiled and adapted for use with Pitman's shorthand commercial course. N. Y., Pitman, ['11.] (N4) 80 p. S. pap., 40 c.

To prevent the young man from thinking that she and her uncle have matrimonial designs upon him, Joyce says she is engaged to her cousin, who turns up and is congratulated by Philip, to his great surprise. After teasing him for a while, Joyce explains to Philip and all ends merrily.

Baroda, Maharani, of, and Mitra, S. M.

The position of women in Indian life. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 40+358 p. (4 p. bibl.) O. $1.75 n.

The genesis of this book is based on the maharani's convictions that the co-operation between men and women in the West, and women's position in regard to public affairs, should be duplicated by her unawakened sisters of the East. She chose Mr. Mitra, the distinguished Hindu writer, to edit her impressions and supplement them with valuable information, the result of his study of western sociology during his seven years' residence in England. The Maharani is an Indian princess, wife of the Gaekwar of Baroda, a most enlightened man. Index.

Barr, Mrs Amelia Edith Huddleston.

A maid of old New York; a romance of Peter Stuyvesant's time. N. Y., Dodd, Mead, '11. (N4) c. 377 p. D. $1.25 n.
The author of "Bow of orange ribbon," "Maid of Maiden Lane," etc., now writes a tale of New York in the time of Peter Stuyvesant, when there was a wall at Wall Street, and the Bowery was a country lane. Tells the love story of Agatha Van Ruyven and Lord Gael McIvar, a Scotchman, who kidnaps his lady love and finds his road strewn with difficulties.

Belasco, D:

The girl of the golden West; novelized from the play; with il. by J. N. Marchand. N. Y., Dodd, Mead, '11. (N4) c. 346 p. D. $1.25 n.

In the rough and picturesque days when gold miners abounded, the girl ran the "Polka" saloon on a California mountainside, and the whole population of the mining camp was in love with her, particularly the gambler-sheriff. But the stranger who comes to rob her, and stays to fall in love with her, is the man who wins the devotion of the simple, fearless and frank young maid—a devotion that runs grave risks and braves great dangers to shield and help the man she loves. A story that Blanche Bates has acted and Caruso sung to crowded houses—which is now for the first time placed before the reading public.

Bouvet, Marie Marguerite,

The smile of the sphinx; il. by H. S. De Lay. Chic., McClurg, '11. (N4) c. 416 p. O. $1.35 n.

This is a story of Helene Doyle, who was tutor in a fashionable girls' school which Matilda Dolliver attends. She and Matilda become intimate friends. Matilda refuses Benedict Travis and yields to her ambition and marries a French count. Fortunately he is a noble man, and his death is her great sorrow. She returns to America and marries Benedict. The "smile of the sphinx" is the nickname the school-girls give Helene Doyle, because she loves Benedict herself but has always tried to appear cheerful, though he does not seem to care for her. Matilda dies, leaving a little daughter, and Helene attains her heart's desire in marrying Benedict.

Du Bois, W: E: Burghardt.

The quest of the silver fleece; a novel; il. by H. S. De Lay. Chic., McClurg, '11. (N4) c. 434 p. O. $1.35 n.

Professor Du Bois is well known for his "Souls of black folk" and other writings on the subject of his race. This book is his first work of fiction. The "silver fleece" is the cotton of the South, and the author uses it as an exposition of the planter's greed and cruelty, the northern trusts' dishonesty and machinations, and the negroes' love for and dependence upon this, his chief occupation. The metaphor is borrowed from the tale of "Jason and the golden fleece" as Mary Taylor, a young white teacher in a negro school, told it to Blessed Alwin, the half-caste hero of the tale. Zora, the heroine, is shown from her twelfth year on, and her future usefulness to her race is depicted. The temptations of the negro girls, their yearning to be married, secret rites of planting cotton by the negroes in some barren spot, and other superstitions are a few of the many characteristic things told.

Evans, Maurice Smethurst.

Black and white in South East Africa; a study in sociology; with a preface by Lt.-Colonel Sir Matthew Nathan. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 18+341 p. map. O. $2.25 n.

The underlying idea of this work is that there are mental and spiritual, as well as physical differences, between the Abantu and the European, and that more advantage to both races will come if the natives are developed on lines indicated by a study of their characteristics rather than on the assumption that their intelligencies and natures are those of white men. The author believes in local self-government for the native, but not in participation in the government of the white man; he believes in their segregation from the Europeans, by an allotment of the areas now reserved for them. He favors education and missionary efforts. Author was justice of the peace of Natal and is now a member of Parliament. Has written "Native parliament in Natal." Index.

This is a revision of the author's "Rhetoric and composition," published five or six years ago. A radical change of plan and the addition of a number of specimens has justified a new title. Index.

Gifford, E. H., D.D.

The incarnation; a study of Philipians II., 5-II., and a university sermon on psalm cx.; ed. by H. Wace, D.D. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 105 p. D. 40 c. n.

Author was sometime archdeacon of London and canon of St. Paul's; the editor is dean of Canterbury. The author shows that there is nothing inconsistent with the belief "as to the manner in which the Deity was limited or the humanity exalted in their union during Christ's life on earth" in St. Paul's teaching. The second treatise adds to the conviction that His words on the subject of His incarnation "cannot, with due regard to fact, be eliminated from consideration." Notes.

Gilder, Jeannette Leonard, ed.

The heart of youth; young people's poems gay and grave; with an introd. by Frances Hodgson Burnett. N. Y., Sturgis & W., '11. (N4) c. 13+332 p. D. $1.25 n.

A collection of poems of action and heroism, humorous poems, witty verse and nonsense verse, songs of rollicking fun, and poems of pathos and tragedy.

Gillmore, Mrs. Inez Haynes.

Janey; being the record of a short interval in the journey through life and the struggle with society of a little girl of nine; with il. by Ada C. Williamson. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. 320 p. D. $1.25 n.

The story of little Jane Elizabeth Blair, aged nine, who spends her summer in the country with Uncle Jim, who always understands, with little Cousin Caroline, who always admires even when she doesn't understand, and her adored friend Elsa, who considers her a very small girl and never understands. Her psychical experience with her little friend Danny is perfectly natural and understandable even in such a normal child, and in the end, when at her birthday party Carl told her that she was pretty and when she was eleven she would be prettier yet, it seems a fitting climax with which to close the book.

Girls' (The) annual; comp. by the editor of The Girl's Realm, and containing contributions by Olaf Baker and other leading writers for girls; with 8 full-page colour plates and a large number of black-and-white illustrations. N. Y., Cassell, '10, ['11.] (N4) 200 p. O. $1.50.

Goodrich, Jos. King.

The coming China; with 32 il. from photographs. Chic., McClurg, '11. (N4) c. 20+298 p. D. $1.50 n.

Author was at one time professor in the Imperial Government College, Kyoto, Japan. A timely book, covering China as she exists at the present moment, or, at least, just before the rebellion broke out. A resident in the Far East for over a quarter of a century, he speaks with authority on such subjects as the former attitude of Chinese statesmen and ruling classes, and the causes operating to change their attitude; of the aspirations of the new China; and the reason for the present feeling in China toward America and in America toward China. Index.

Gowans, Adam L., comp.

The twelve best tales by English writers. N. Y., Crowell, ['11.] (N4) c. 8+368 p. D. 75 c. n.

Contents: Scott's "Wandering Willie's tale"; Hogg's "Mysterious bride"; Thackeray's "Princess's tragedy"; Gaskell's "Old nurse's story"; "Half-brothers"; Dickens's "Richard Doolittle"; "Hunted down"; "To be taken with a grain of salt"; "Bagman's story"; Stevenson's "Sire de Malétoit's door"; "Markheim"; Dr. J. Brown's "Rab and his friends."

Grenfell, Sir Wilfred Thomason, M.D.

Down north on the Labrador. N. Y. and Chic., Revell, ['11.] (N4) c. 229 p. pls. D. $1 n.

Contents: Silver fox; Regeneration of Johnnie Elworth; How Jimmy Hampton made good; Venture in economics; Given to hospitality; Remedy for worry; On his beam ends; Partial conversion; Sources of pleasure; Suzanne; Brin; Rube Marvin's confession; Spars of the "Rose of Torridge." By the author of "Down to the sea," etc. The illustrations are from photographs of the region.

Grey, Zane.

The young lion hunter; il. from photographs. N. Y., Harper, '11. (N4) c. 277 p. D. $1.25.

Another story of Jim Williams, the ranger, and two boys from the east, Ken Ward and his small brother Hal, aged fourteen, and Dick Leslie. They strike the trail after Hal has broken his first broncho to his will, and the book deals largely with the usual western adventures, with descriptions of the Grand Cañon of Arizona and other wonderful scenes vividly presented. They find traces of gold in their wanderings.

Haggard, H: Rider.

The Mahatma and the hare; a dream story; with 12 illustrations by W. T. Horton and H. M. Brock. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. 165 p. D. $1 n.

A fantasy dealing with the rights of animals. There is quality and feeling in this story of a hare and his life in the hunting preserve. By the author of "King Solomon's mines," "Queen Sheba's ring," "Allan Quatermain," etc.

Hall, Bolton.

The gift of sleep; with an introd. by E. Moffatt Weyer. N. Y., Moffat, Yard, '11. (N4) 14+305 p. D. $1.25 n.

In this book Mr. Bolton Hall, in the common-sense style that made his "Three acres and liberty" popular, shows how our own bodies and minds should be naturally used for their mutual healing and perfection. He believes that mental science, "to commend itself to ordinary people, must show definite results that can be measured." Mr. Hall points out how science helps us to sleep well and to rest in the midst of turmoil, without a course of "going into the silence" of, or "concentration" or other artificial processes with vague results. Edward M. Weyer, professor of philosophy in Washington and Jefferson College, writes an introduction which shows that the book appeals to scientific reason instead of to unproved theories.

Hall, Granville Davison.

Lee's invasion of northwest Virginia in 1861. Glencoe, Ill., A. C. Hall, '11. (N4) c. 164 p. D. $1.25.

Account of an important campaign which failed. Rebellion also threatened Virginia 100 years ago, and a parallel is drawn between the two periods.

Harrison, Frederic.

Autobiographic memoirs. v. 1, (1831-1870); v. 2, (1870-1910.) N. Y., Macmillan, '11. (N4) 17+405; 11+358 p. (11 p. bibl.) por. O. $7.50 n., boxed.

The author of this autobiography is honorary fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. Besides a history of college life and travel in 1850, the author gives histories of reforms, Crimean War, Indian affairs, literary London, sociology and economics, trades-unions, Franco-German War, French republic, French statesmen and writers, public men of all professions, Greece, Turkey, Egypt, and the United States. Appendix. Index.

Hartzenbusch, Juan Eugenio.

La coja y el encogido; ed., with introd., notes and vocab., by J. Geddes, jr. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. 17+168 p. por. S. 60 c.

The editor is professor of romance languages in Boston University.

Hawthorne, Hildegarde.

The lure of the garden; il. in full color by Maxfield Parrish and others. N. Y., Century Co., '11. (N4) c. 10+259 p. Q. $4.50 n., boxed.

Beautifully illustrated book, in which the author, a granddaughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, conveys to the reader something of the social side of gardens old and new, and indicates how the social value of a garden is coming to be better understood and enjoyed here in America. She pictures how even a very small place is capable of yielding a vast deal of pleasure, and how the secret of thoroughly using a garden is one well worth the knowing. There are chapters on: Our grandmothers' gardens; Childhood in the garden; Gardens and groups; Garden gates; Washington's garden; Winter wonder; The social side of gardens; Gardens of some well-known people; Gardens in literature; Some Garden vices; Gardens public and botanical.

Hays, Mrs. Marg. Parker Gebbie.

Kiddie rhymes; with pictures by Grace G. Wiederseim. Phil., Jacobs, ['11.] (N4) c. 52 p. col. pls. Q. bds., $1.25.

Heath, E. Crosby.

Henrietta. N. Y., J: Lane, '11. (N4) 304 p. D. $1.25, fixed.

Eleven-year-old Henrietta is the daughter of a dramatic critic and an awfully pretty mother who wears lovely clothes and lets her boy and girl alone. Henrietta studies the people about her and her father's genius with enthusiasm, and gives quite a panorama of her literary home. She says good-bye inviting all to her début, for she is to be a great actress.

Herts, Alice Minnie.

The children's educational theatre; with an introd. by C. W. Eliot; il. from photographs. N. Y., Harper, '11. (N4) c. 10+150 p. D. $1.25 n.

The author, who worked for seven years in organizing a Children's Educational Theatre, under the auspices of the Educational Alliance, New York City, and in training the actors, explains in these pages the reason of its origin, the enthusiasm with which the undertaking was supported, and the wide influence it has exerted. The demand of children for interesting entertainment is often met by nothing better than cheap vaudeville or moving-picture shows. In these performances at the Children's Theatre both players and audience were interested and developed artistically, mentally, and morally.

Hervey, Wa. Lowrie, and Hix, Melvin.

Hill, W: Bancroft, D.D.

Introduction to the life of Christ. N. Y., Scribner, '11. (N4) c. 8+226 p. D. $1.25 n.

Author is professor of Biblical literature, Vassar College. "Deals with a variety of topics, all bearing upon the one important question: What are the sources from which we gain a knowledge of that Life, and how far are they trustworthy?"—Preface. Appendix cites different books on life of Christ and comments on the position each upholds on the subject.

Hill, W: L.

Jackieboy in Rainbowland; with pictures [in col.] by Fanny Y. Cory. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally, ['11.] (N4) c. 84 p. O. $1.25.

A happy witch conducts a little boy to Rainbowland, shows him each of the seven wonderful provinces of that glittering land, and the homes of Little Red Riding Hood, Goldie Locks and Bluebeard and other friends, old and new.

Hodges, G., D.D.

Everyman's religion. N. Y., Macmillan, '11. (N4) c. 5+297 p. D. $1.50 n.

The purpose of this book by the dean of the Theological School of Cambridge is to present the essential elements of Christian faith and life in a simple and unconventional manner and appealing to a man's common sense. The conclusions at which the author arrives are largely orthodox, though he makes no use in his reasoning of the argument from authority.

Hoensbroech, Count Paul von.

Fourteen years a Jesuit; a record of personal experiences and a criticism; tr. from the German by Alice Zimmern. In 2 v. N. Y., Cassell, '11. (N4) 17+427; 495 p. por. O. $7.50 n.

Work describes the Jesuit system of education and moral training from inside knowledge gained during a fourteen years' membership of the Order. The author was educated in a Jesuit school, and gives an account of his life from his novitiate to his renunciation, revealing something of the inner history of the mystery-enshrouded Society of Jesus.

Holland, Bernard H:

The life of Spencer Compton, eighth Duke of Devonshire. In 2 v.; with portraits and other illustrations. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 11+494; 7+440 p. O. $9 n.

Spencer Compton, eighth Duke of Devonshire, was born on July 23, 1833. He was educated by tutors and after leaving Cambridge in 1854 he entered the House of Commons in 1857. In 1862 he visited the United States when the troubles of our Civil War were beginning and the Proclamation of Emancipation was issued, and there are quotations from his letters giving the point of view of an unprejudiced looker-on. His interview with Lincoln is another bit of exceptional interest to Americans as well as his experiences north and south. His letters to Gladstone, his ideas regarding the Afghan War, Indian and Irish affairs, all have the interest of a man who looked at things in an original and independent fashion. He died in Cannes on March 24, 1908. Index.

Holliday, Carl.

The cavalier poets; their lives, their day, and their poetry. N. Y., Neale, '11. (N4) c. 320 p. (8 p. bibl.) O. $2.50 n.

In this anthology and study, Mr. Holliday, acting head of the Department of English Literature, Vanderbilt University, not only tells of the brave deeds of these cavaliers, their love affairs, and of their poetic ideals, but he also tells of the gay life of the early seventeenth century. The biographical sketches of the more important cavalier poets—Herrick, Quarles, Herbert, Carew, Lovelace, Cowley, Vaughan, Stanley, Habington, Suckling, Davenant, Marvell, Crashaw, Sackville, and all the other important cavalier singers—are sympathetic and instructive. Index.

Hullah, Annette.

A little history of music. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 12+220 p. il. O. $1.40 n.

This is a simple history for young people, tracing the growth of music from single sounds to symphonies in such a way that those who know little of the subject can understand how this happened. Musicians' lives have been left for longer records; the book is almost entirely concerned with the story of music. Index.

Huntington, Helen Manchester Gates, [Mrs. Archer Milton Huntington.]

The moon lady. N. Y., Scribner, '11. (N4) c. 301 p. D. $1.25 n.

Scene is laid in New York of to-day. Humphrey Wyld struggles to save his brilliant, fascinating mother from falling a hopeless victim to drink. He gives up his entire life to her and then finds that the girl he loves utterly misunderstands him and his relation to his mother. The story vividly depicts Humphrey's herculean task, and ends with a supreme sacrifice on the part of his mother. By the author of "The sovereign good."

Hyde, W: De Witt, D.D.

The five great philosophies of life. N. Y., Macmillan, '11. (N4) c. '04-'11. 10+296 p. D. $1.50 n.

The five centuries from the birth of Socrates to the death of Jesus produced five principles: the Epicurean pursuit of pleasure, genial but ungenerous; the Stoic law of self-control, strenuous but forbidding; the Platonic plan of subordination, sublime but ascetic; the Aristotelian sense of proportion, practical but uninspiring; and the Christian spirit of love, broadest and deepest of them all. The purpose of this book by the president of Bowdoin College is to let the masters of these sane and wholesome principles of personality talk to us in their own words, with just enough of comment and interpretation to bring us to their point of view and make us welcome their friendly assistance in the philosophical guidance of life. The work is in reality a rewritten edition of "From Epicurus to Christ." Index.

Jacob, Bp. Edg., D.D.

James, H. R.

Education and statesmanship in India, 1797 to 1910. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 143 p. O. $1.20 n.

Author is connected with Indian Educational Service and is principal of Presidency College, Calcutta. He has written "Practical advice to students," etc. These papers, appearing in the Calcutta Statesman in the first part of this year, were written with the purpose of helping to a better understanding of educational work in British India.

Jewell, Louise Pond.

The great adventure. N. Y., Stokes, '11. (N4) c. 10+180 p. front. D. 80 c. n.

The "great adventure" is what Carroll Page calls death. From a little girl six years old when her sister died until the end the conviction is forced upon her that the fear of death is an unfortunate misapprehension which robs life of its real joy and fearlessness. She carries her convictions out by the plans she makes about her own death. She takes leave of those she loves as if she were merely going on a journey, and there is no funeral. No one sees her go, and the next day her room is sunny and cheerful. The book is written about a friend of the author's in the hope that others may be helped who now fear death.

Johnson, Clifton.

Highways and byways of the Great Lakes; written and il. by Clifton Johnson. N. Y., Macmillan, '11. (N4) c. 14+328 p. O. (American highways and byways.) $2 n.

Great Lake region is a fertile one for both writer and photographer. Mr. Johnson's work abounds in amusing incident, homely narrative and descriptions, the book giving a vivid impression of what the northern part of the United States now is from a human standpoint, explaining how it has developed from an untamed wilderness. There are sixty-four full-page illustrations made from photographs taken by the author.

Has as chief motive the story of Luther as a personality and as an influence on his time. Dr. McGiffert has been Professor of Church History in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, since 1893, and holds degrees from Harvard University and the University of Marburg. He looks upon Luther as "one of the most human of the world's great men."

McSpadden, Jos. Walker.

Opera synopses; a guide to the plots and characters of the standard operas. N. Y., Crowell, ['11.] (N4) c. 6+336 p. S. 75 c. n.

The plots of sixty-four operas, grand, romantic, and light, actively in the repertoire of the producing managers within the last few years—including the $10,000 prize opera brought out at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1911-12—are retold here in clear, concise form. Data relative to the history, composer, first production, and cast of characters of each opera are included. The work is designed both for opera-goers and for those living outside of the large cities who wish to have a knowledge of the standard productions.

Manning-Brewer, Estelle Hempstead.

Treason of the blood. Cedar Rapids, Ia., Torch Press, '11. (N4) c. 210 p. pls. D. $1 n.

Author is confident that a great day of reformation is rapidly approaching in our Southern States. A drop of negro blood has, and will continue to, preclude all social equality. The unrestrained practice of mixing the races must cease, and any one who thinks seriously can but realize the conditions, especially as applied to rural districts or the smaller towns. The author has been a close student of social affairs at the national capital, as well as in the south, and her book presents to us some very clear-cut phases of this great question as it exists to-day. There is no enmity in the story toward the negro in his proper sphere.

Mayo, Marg.

Baby mine; with il. by Mayo Bunker. N. Y., Dodd, Mead, '11. (N4) 241 p. D. $1 n.

A novelized drama considered one of the best farces produced for several years which had a successful season in New York and was also played in London this summer.

Middleton, G:

Embers, with The failures, The gargoyle. In his house, Madonna, The man masterful; one-act plays of contemporary life. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. 192 p. D. $1.35 n.

"Embers" shows the influence of an ideal on a life; "The failures" portrays what love may become in weak characters; "The gargoyle" is an analysis of the pathos and insincerity of the literary temperament, while "In his house" and "The man masterful" are intimate studies of marriage. "Madonna" is a delicate picture of a girl's psychology on her wedding eve. Such distinguished actresses as Julia Marlowe and Margaret Anglin have appeared in plays by Mr. Middleton.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louise Stewart,

['Ennis Graham,' pseud.]

Fairies afield; with il. by Gertrude De-main Hammond. [N. Y., Macmillan,] '11. (N4) 9+252 p. D. $1.50 n.

By the author of "Us," "The boys and I," etc. Contents: "Ask the robin"; A magic table; The weather maiden; The enchanted trunks.

Noll, Arth. Howard, and Wilson, Bourdon.

In quest of Aztec treasure. N. Y., Neale, '11. (N4) c. 272 p. D. $1.50.

Mr. Noll is on the faculty of the University of the South, Sewanee, and is author of a dozen or more books. Mr. Wilson for twenty years has been a journalist in San Francisco, and now writes for The Argonaut, Sunset Magazine, and other well-known western publications; both know Mexican life thoroughly. The aim of this story, while it is not intended to be read as serious history, is to narrate with accuracy the incident in Mexican history upon which the story is based; the incident treated of has to do with church and state secrets.

Noyes, W. A.

The elements of qualitative analysis. 6th ed.; rev. in collaboration with the author by G. McP. Smith. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. '87-'11. 5+133 p. O. $1.10.

Pain, Barry.

Eliza getting on; with a front. by Fred Bennett. N. Y., Cassell, '11. (N4) 118 p. D. $1 n.

By the author of "Eliza." Humorous tale of the gradual success of Eliza and her pompous, silly husband, who tells the story.

Paine, Ralph Delahaye.

The book of buried treasure; being a true history of the gold jewels, and plate of pirates, galleons, etc., which are sought for to this day. N. Y., Sturgis & W., '11. (N4) c. 425 p. pls. O. $2.50 n.

The old saying that "truth is stranger than fiction" is once more justified in this book telling of quests for buried treasure in various parts of the world. The author made researches at home and abroad which yielded a vast amount of material from original sources. Among the British state papers, for example, he examined documents which fully relate the history of Kidd and his treasure. The result of all this study is a volume as full of adventure and romance as any novel. By the author of "The ships and sailors of old Salem."

Pancoast, H.; Spackman, and Spaeth, J.: Duncan Ernest.

Early English poems. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. 17+548 p. D. $1.50.

This collection opens with the earliest surviving expressions of the English race in literature, and it ends at the Elizabethan period. A few representative and significant examples in the general course of poetry in its long progress are given. Mr. Pancoast, member of the American Philosophical Society, Modern Language Association of America, and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, is responsible for all but the Old English section of the book, while the co-editor, lecturer for University Extension Society, is responsible for the Old English section. Both have produced other works along the same lines. Index.

Parker, L. N.

Pomander Walk; il. by J. Scott Williams. N. Y., J. Lane, '11. (N4) c. 266 p. O. $1.30, fixed.

A novelized version of the quaint little play which had a successful run at Wallach's Theatre last year. The period is about a hundred years ago, and the action all takes place in a small crescent on the Thames, London. The retired butler, posing as a man of fashion, the old admiral, the widow who lives next door and decides to marry him, Lord Orford and his son Jack in love with Marjolaine against his father's wishes, the girl's mother, a former love of Lord Orford's, and some others, all play their simple parts in this really charming story.

Parrish, Randall.

My lady of doubt; with 4 il. in full color by Alonzo Kimball. Chic., McClurg, '11. (N4) c. 381 p. O. $1.35 n.

In a brightly lighted ball-room in Philadelphia Major Lawrence, in the uniform of a British officer, is dancing with a slim, blue-eyed colonial beauty. Lawrence has come from Washington's camp at Valley Forge to spy out the British strength, but is lured by the beauty of this girl, whom he had encountered earlier in the day, to risk the danger of going to the ball. He is suspected by a British officer supposed to be engaged to the girl, rescued by the lady, and escapes with the whole army on the track. This is but the beginning of a tale of stirring adventure and love. By the author of "Love under fire," etc.

Peattie, Mrs. Eliza W.

Edda and the oak; with il. by Katharine Merrill. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally, '11. (N4) c. 6+134 p. O. $1.25.

It is when Edda leaves the top flat, elevated six stories above a patch of green and a strip of hard pavement, for a visit to her grandmother in the country, that she discovers a second world within her world. The face in the bark of the old oak first discloses it to her, and from that moment every flower has a new meaning, bird, bug, and squirrel become thrillingly alive and companionable.

Perrault, Charles.

Perrault's fairy tales; newly tr. by S. R. Littlewood; with 12 coloured il. by Honor C. Appleton. Bost., Estes, '11. (N4) 16+107 p. O. $1.50 n.

Of all the works of this author, none has become so immortalized as his fairy tales. "The beauty and the beast," "Bluebeard" and others are as familiar to the nursery today as they were over two hundred years ago. The French government recognized his genius by erecting a monument to his memory in 1910.

Phillips, Coles.

A gallery of girls. N. Y., Century Co., '11. (N4) c. no paging, il. in col. Q. $3, boxed.

Gathers into the more enduring form of a gift-book this illustrator's studies of the up-to-date American girl which have been such a feature of Life's covers the last few months. The flat color of the background is usually the same as the girl's dress, making the figure lines partly a matter of imagination, yet brought out here and there by a ribbon, a chair, a pretty ankle in silken hose, or a rounded arm.

Randolph, Canon Berkeley W.; D.D.

Confession in the Church of England since the Reformation; a paper read at Cambridge, Lent, 1911. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 47 p. D. cl. bds., 40 c. n.

This paper was read at a meeting of the Confraternity of the Holy Trinity in Lent of this year by the canon of Ely. The confession is considered, not as a necessity, nor as the means to attain a high degree of spiritual life, but as a medicine and means of grace of which church members are free to avail themselves. By the author of "Law of Sinai," "Ember thoughts," etc.

Re-Bartlett, Lucy.

The coming order. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (N4) 12+117 p. O. 90 c. n.

This series of essays by an honorary member of La Società Italiana di Sociologia, la Société de la Suisse pour la Réforme Pénitentiaire, the Harvard Association, and the Penal Reform League, is about woman and her modern failures and social mistakes, with hers and man's possibilities in the future, especially through higher ideals in marriage and a proper understanding and control of the emotions which lead to maternity.

Rihani, Ameen F.

The book of Khalid. N. Y., Dodd, Mead, '11. (N4) c. 8+349 p. D. $1.30 n.

Americans know, in a general way, what we think of the immigrant, but what does the immigrant think of us? Read this book of Khalid, who was born, raised and educated on the slopes of Mt. Lebanon, who entered our land, and who learned to know America by the painful but instructive process of beginning at the bottom and working upward.

Rolland, Romain.

Jean-Christophe in Paris; The marketplace; Antoinette; The house; tr. by Gilbert Cannan. N. Y., Holt, '11. (N4) c. 473 p. D. $1.50 n.

For notice of "Jean-Christophe," containing the first four volumes of this novel, see "Weekly Record, P. W. Dec. 10, '10, [2333]." Three sections appear in this volume, in the first the musical world of Paris as it appears to a foreigner is remorselessly analyzed; in the second, "Antoinette," the Frenchwoman, the glory and mainstay of that France which foreigners rarely see, is described with a loving touch; and in the third Jean-Christophe the German and his friend Olivier, Antoinette's brother, find in each other a complement, strengthening and sweetening each other, and Jean begins to discover the true French spirit.

Ross, E: Alsworth.

The changing Chinese; the conflict of Oriental and western cultures in China. N. Y., Century Co., '11. (N4) c. 16+356 p. pls. O. $2.40 n.

The author is a member of the Institut Internationale de Sociologie, confined to the hundred leading social thinkers of the world. Has published "Social control," "Foundations of sociology," "Social psychology." This book, written with a basis of six months of inquiry and 10,000 miles of travel in China, is therefore the first to be written on the subject by a representative of the science of sociology. He differs from the conclusions of the diplomat who traces the ills of China to a medieval government, from the business man, the missionary, or ethnologist, and finds these ills root chiefly in certain peculiarities of Chinese social organization. Athonia; or, the original four hundred. Manitowoc, Wis., Lakeside Co., [Box 166,] '11. (N4) c. '10. 479 p. pls. O. $1.25 n.

"That centuries before Columbus discovered America both Europeans and Asiatics, more frequently the latter, had landed in America, the following pages attempt to prove beyond conjecture."—Preface. Relates what befell four hundred Athenian men and women who established a colony, Athonia, in America.

Seegmiller, Wilhelmina.

Other rhymes for little readers; with pictures by Ruth Mary Hallock. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally, ['11.] (N4) c. 9+72 p. Q. $1.25.

A new collection of rhymes and pictures by the author of "Little rhymes for little readers." Like the earlier book, this is a portrayal of life from the child's point of view, here particularly in his relation to nature. The author is supervisor of drawing in the schools of Indianapolis.

Senefelder, Alois.

The invention of lithography; tr. from the orig. German by J. W. Muller. N. Y., Fuchs & Lang Mfg. Co., [29 Warren St.,] '11. (N4) c. 12+229 p. front. Q. $5.

The author was inventor and perfecter of lithography, and he wrote this story of his life and his invention in 1817. The book is in two parts: the history of the invention and of the various applications of the new art, and the description of the methods for writing, drawing, engraving, transferring, etching, and printing stated with all the clearness possible, and accompanied with object lessons in the form of specimen plates. Appendix.

Sharber, Kate Trimble.

At the age of Eve; with il. by Paul Meylan. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill, ['11.] (N4) c. 354 p. D. $1.25 n.

Ann Fielding, a lovely young southern girl, is loved by two men, one a handsome lawyer, running for governor of her state, the other a fine young doctor she has always known. The lawyer wins her love, but fortunately she discovers in time that he is tyrannical and self-seeking, and after a year of misery the doctor comes into his own.

Sharp, Dallas Lore.

The fall of the year; il. by Rob. Bruce Horsfall. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, ['11.] (N4) c. '96-'11. 15+126 p. il. D. (Dallas Lore Sharp nature ser.) 60 c.

A book to be used in school, giving facts about nature in an interesting way and not endowing animals with more than human intelligence and emotion. The book is devoted to the fall of the year. At the end are notes and suggestions for both pupil and teacher.

Short, Josephine Helena.

Chosen days in Scotland; il. with photographs. N. Y., Crowell, ['11.] (N4) c. 14+388 p. O. $2 n., boxed.

This volume is in part the outcome of former residence in Scotland, but more especially of a visit in 1910, undertaken with a direct view to preparing material for this work. Beginning with the Border region, Scott's country, Edinburgh, Lothian, and Glasgow, the author makes her way to the Scottish Highlands and lakes, and continues on to all the many points in the north and west, where various castles, churches, and ancient ruins have an interest, historical or romantic, for the traveller. Places like Orkney and Isle of Skye are included among the localities visited and described. Index.

Simmonds, Ralph.

All about airships; with a colour frontispiece and a large number of il. from photographs. N. Y., Cassell, ['11.] (N4) 374 p. O. $1.50 n.

An interesting and instructive book, up-to-date in text and illustration. The work begins with men's thinking of flying centuries ago, and brings the young reader down to the present with its heavier-than-air machines.

Singleton, Esther, comp. and ed.

Egypt as described by great writers; with numerous illustrations. N. Y., Dodd, Mead, '11. (N4) c. 12+357 p. O. $1.60 n.

Some of this author's past volumes about Paris, Rome, or Japan have been most satisfactory books on these cities or countries for the general reader. In this volume she has collected the greatest word-paintings of mysterious and majestic Egypt—the land of the Pyramids and the Sphinx; also the land of the Suez Canal, modern Cairo, and Khartoum. Chronological summary and statistics.

Yver, Colette.

Love vs. law (Les dames du palais); tr. by Mrs. Bradley Gilman. N. Y., Putnam, '11. (N4) c. 12+401 p. D. $1.35 n.

This novel, which has attracted considerable attention in France, deals with the question of marriage as affected by woman's entrance upon an independent career. The case chosen for presentation is that of a Parisian woman lawyer, who marries a colleague at the bar and whom a successful case makes "the fashion" of the capital. She is not a better lawyer than her husband; the facts that she is a pretty woman and the newspapers make much of her suffice to give her a practice far greater than his. Professional jealousy creeps into his heart and threatens disaster to their domestic felicity. The author is most suggestive and revealing in her study of details of the new situations that arise when a woman's interests and allegiance are divided between her husband and her career, between her home and her day's work.

THE "BATH-TUB TRUST" DECISION IN ITS BEARING ON PRICE MAINTENANCE.

THE recent decision of the Federal courts in the government's anti-trust suit against the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company is interesting to the book trade as apparently excepting process patents from that freedom to control price maintenance on patented articles allowed by the Gillette Safety Razor and similar decisions. It is not, of course, within the power of any trade journal or any individual to forecast court decisions, or modifications of the statute implied in those decisions. It is possible, however, to analyze the trend of a series of decisions in any particular field. And since the trend of federal decisions to date has been to allow the proprietors of patented articles full control of prices and selling conditions on such articles, and since, by analogy, decisions regarding copyrighted articles may not unlikely be in accord with those upon patented articles, any limitation, or even delimitation, of freedom in price maintenance upon patented articles should be of interest to the book trade.

The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company is a combination of some fifty corporations and individuals, all manufacturing or dealing in enamelled ironware, on the basis of licenses to use a certain patented tool, an "enamel dredger," in the manufacture of the ware. The product itself was not patented. Each licensee was under agreement to maintain a fixed schedule of retail prices.

Suit was brought by the government under the Sherman law. The defense was twofold: that a patented tool was used in the process of manufacture, and that the prices fixed by agreement were "reasonable" prices, and hence the combination, by the recent Standard Oil and Tobacco Company decisions, could not be in "unreasonable" restraint of trade.

In deciding against the second of these contentions, Judge Rose, of the United States Circuit Court, said in part:

"The defendants assume that the burden of proof as to the unreasonableness of their prices is on the government. They say, and say truly, that the government has neither shown nor attempted to show that the schedule prices were unreasonable. The government replies that every agreement to fix prices and to force or bribe makers or dealers to maintain them is illegal. . . .

"The presumption of law is that the prices which have been made by the free and untrammelled trafficking of the market-place are the reasonable prices. Any one who interferes with the natural action and interaction of this bargaining assumes the burden of showing that what he did was fair and reasonable. If such a burden rests upon the defendants, it has not been sustained.

" . . . Some men believe that price agreements should be sustained by the courts unless they are shown to be against the public interest. Others hold that they may be permitted only when it is affirmatively shown that they promote the public interest. Still others say that a price agreement pure and simple is always illegal. That the Supreme Court has declared the last of the above contentions to be the law is conclusive here. Only a few months ago it said:

"Agreements or combinations between dealers having for their sole purpose the destruction of competition and the fixing of prices, are injurious to the public interests and void."—Dr. Miles Medical Co. vs. John D. Parks & Sons Co."

In summing up, Judge Rose distinctly stated that "unless protected by the terms or the policy of the patent laws," "a price agreement pure and simple is always illegal."

The court, proceeding to the question of the patented rights of the joint defendants, seemed to imply that it is to be the policy of the courts to hold that process patents, as such, cannot be made ground for price maintenance. The court said:

"A patent is a grant of a right to exclude all others from making, using or selling the invention covered by it. It does not give a right to the patentee to sell indulgences to break the law of the land, be it the Sherman Act or another. . . .

"A patentee who monopolizes his invention breaks no law. He who uses his property right to exclude others from the making, using or selling his invention, for the purpose and with the effect of making a combination to restrain trade in something from which his patent gives him no right to exclude others, does break the law."

This decision is distinctly a narrowing of the right to control prices upon patented articles, but hardly an unexpected one.

It leaves untouched the right of the individual patentee, and inferentially of the copy-right owner, to control individually the price of the patented article or copyrighted work, in which the law itself assures to him a legal and effective monopoly.

THE Philadelphia Booksellers' Association is certainly showing an admirable alertness and enthusiasm. To start off its fall meetings with three such optimistic and informing papers as those of Messrs. Herr, Lewis and Stockwell augurs well for a successful year.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will reprint these papers in succeeding issues, Mr. Herr's, the first, appearing below.

HOW THE BOOKSELLER CAN MAKE THE BEST OF THE PRESENT GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

A PAPER BY EUGENE L. HERR, OF LANCASTER, PA., BEFORE THE BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA.

It is with considerable diffidence that I have undertaken to prepare this paper, as I fail to see in what manner I am to enlighten the Philadelphia booksellers as to any improved methods by which we may pluck the golden fruits from the tree of opportunity, which the publishers have so kindly planted, watered and pruned for us. However, our good friend Shoemaker got hold of me one afternoon about a month ago and after telling me that, though the booksellers were a poor lot generally and bum merchants—didn't keep real bookshops, etc.—you know the talk, I'm sure, he patted me on the back and told me what a real complete bookstore I helped to manage (to the best of my knowledge, he hasn't been inside of it for ten years), and said that I was a live wire and a real merchant, etc. Well, you see, I simply couldn't help falling for it, and here I am.

Moreover, if I had any real live ideas I don't see why I should impart them to you fellows in Philadelphia, because you're always trying to steal our Lancaster trade anyway, and it keeps us awake nights up there trying to devise means to keep our people from spending good Lancaster-made money in Philadelphia. Nevertheless, I am so overcome with this co-operative, love-your-competitor-as-yourself spirit that if you can get any ideas out of this paper, which I very much doubt, you are certainly welcome to them.

Last spring a New Yorker to whom I was enumerating the papers that had been secured for the convention of the A. B. A. said concerning one number, "He'll give you a good paper, but he won't tell you anything," and I fear, after I have finished, no matter what you may think of the quality of my offering, you will be sure to agree with the latter part of my friend's remark. But I am not as timid as a certain Philadelphia bookseller, who was so nervous about appearing in a public capacity that on the occasion of his singing his first solo number in his church choir, he was compelled to have a fellow chorister brace his knees against the chancel. I am willing to talk if you are willing to listen.

As a matter of fact, I think it well-nigh impossible for one person to give to another concrete data upon which to work. That is to say, it would be foolish for me to try to tell you how to dress a window, how to buy books, arrange stock or write an advertisement. I'm sure there are many of you who could far outdo me in any or all of these points. So I have decided to try to get at some real basic principles from which we may start to work, each in his own individual way, for I believe individuality is the one great corner-stone to success in modern business building.

When this paper was first suggested to me it was under the caption of "How to Make Money in the Book Business." Now, if this had been put to me a few years back I would have been compelled to resort to the same tactics as my friend Hutchinson, of New Bedford, who told us at one of the conventions of the A. B. A. how he had made money in the book business by selling driftwood for open fireplaces and real New England maple syrup. But thanks to the efforts of a few devoted workers among the members of the A. B. A., it has at last become possible for us to make some money—not much, as yet, but some, at least—by sticking to our own legitimate field. So the matter as suggested seemed so simple that I am not surprised that your programme committee changed the title. Why, all that is necessary now to make money in the book business is to sell books. The publishers have attended to all other little matters for us. And if what you make this year doesn't come up to your expectations, why all you have to do next year is to sell more books and the additional profit will be there for you and you can go right out on automobile row and blow yourself to a new $5000 car.

One of the points that Mr. Shoemaker is forever reiterating—that booksellers are poor merchants—is certainly a self-evident fact, for if we weren't we surely would have gotten out of this business years ago. Webster says a merchant is one who buys and sells goods; he doesn't say, but I would infer that he means with the idea of making a possible profit. Otherwise he would certainly not venture that which he had of a certainty for that which he most certainly could not get. Yet that is what we have done for many, many years. We have bought that which, if all sold, would most certainly net us only a loss, and then we have been unable to resell all of what we bought. So I am perfectly willing to agree with our good friend that we have surely been the poorest merchants in the world.

But much of that condition has, happily, been changed, and in buying a bill of books you need not now be constantly confronted by the actuality of a loss. We have at last learned about what it costs us to do business, and most of our friends, the publishers, have taken such steps as will at least insure us a small profit. My friend, W. B. Clarke, of Boston, is, I believe, still not satisfied with the results and continues to do business at the old stand. Nevertheless, while the opportunity may not be absolutely golden, it surely has a silver lining. It behooves us to become good merchants.

In considering this subject in my own mind, it logically fell under three heads: merchandising, salesmanship and advertising, all of which are to a certain extent synonymous and yet with a difference.

Merchandising comprehends judicious buying, adequate and yet reasonable pricing, attractive and systematic store arrangement and the building up of a strong and aggressive organization.

Salesmanship covers the actual presentation to the possible customer of the merchandise which you wish to sell in such a manner as to effect a sale with a profit.

Advertising is comprehensive salesmanship. While the salesman can present or talk to but one customer at a time, the advertisement can and does present your wares to thousands. It can, and to be successful must, create a desire in the minds of many for that which you wish to sell. Thus, in a receptive mood, the customer may become a victim to the salesman's wiles.

The merchant must purchase advantageously, then arrange and price attractively, next advertise successfully, and finally sell. These functions may all be combined in one individual, or may be divided among a large corps of employees working under systematic organization.

In buying we constantly run up against our first big snag as good merchants, and conditions exist here which I hope to see radically reformed at an early day. You are constantly confronted by the temptation to overbuy; too large quantities of individual books and too many lines. The first evil is constantly fostered by the pernicious system of quantity discount—of all evil schemes for the undoing of the merchant, the worst. It comes from the highly laudable desire of each individual publisher and his salesman to sell each individual bookseller the largest possible amount of his product, if possible to the exclusion of the other fellows, and most certainly to the harm of the retailer and eventually of the entire trade. In the face of the fact, universally cried aloud by the publishers that fiction does not make them any money, and that "best sellers" are a delusion and a snare, they shove and crowd each other for the possession of some favorite author's work, and in the fear of some day missing a big book, they publish much that should never see the light of day. The evil effect of tempting a dealer to buy a hundred copies of a popular novel to secure an increased discount, when his best judgment tells him to buy but twenty-five, is perfectly apparent. He is compelled to push this one novel to the exclusion of many others equally or more meritorious, and most especially to the detriment of more serious books of worth and merit.

You are told that by buying a hundred copies of such and such a novel you will secure, say, 30 and 10 per cent. discount, while on some books of history or travel, priced at two or three times the retail price, on which the publisher is sure of a profit and which he knows you will probably carry longer and have to work harder to sell, you are offered but 25 per cent. discount. Further, when you have succeeded in selling your hundred copies bought at 30 and 10, if you desire to keep up a stock of the book, but necessarily in smaller quantities, you are given but the short discount of 30 per cent. Thus the publishers are still helping us to remain very poor merchants to the very best of their ability.

I contend that a price once established on a book should hold on that book on all future purchases. I further contend that a discount established by quantity purchases should hold not only on one book, but on an entire line. And I further contend that a dealer constantly carrying a comprehensive stock of books and continually exerting all his best efforts to sell books, is entitled to the maximum discounts.

Why any large dealer whose outlet is a hundred times as great as ours can possibly be, and whose profits are consequently magnified in the same proportions, should in addition be profited by a much greater discount, I have never been able to see. These conditions do not exist to the same glaring extent in other lines of merchandise, and they should not exist in the book business.

So long as they do, I would firmly advocate co-operation in buying, so that two or three or more stores by joining together could obtain together the quantity discounts without imperiling their business existence. I can see no reason why several stores should not combine, in a town containing several bookstores, in which the quantity used by all would entitle them to a maximum discount, whereas the quantity each could possibly use would not. Some plan should be worked out at an early date in this association by which the advantages of combined buying could be secured by such of its members as desired to avail themselves of such an arrangement.

The publishers should offer to all legitimate booksellers, including bookstores in department stores, a minimum discount of at least one-third off the fixed selling price on all books in his line, and that discount should hold for all purchases during the year. He then might offer, if he so desired, as a premium for extra effort, a rebate of, say, 2½ or 5 per cent, if purchases during that year reached certain gross amounts. This would in a large measure offset the evil tendency of buying too heavily on individual titles to the exclusion of other and possibly better books. It would offer an added premium on keeping up a large and well assorted stock at all seasons.

It is of the utmost importance in every field of retailing to-day that a stock be turned over frequently, and it is also a vital necessity, if we wish to put book publishing and distributing on an efficient basis, that booksellers carry at all seasons a comprehensive and varied stock. These two requirements can only be met by judicious buying in the first place and constant vigilance thereafter in keeping up the stock of salable books. Outside current fiction and seasonal books, a book that is good stock at one time should be good stock at all times, and should never be out of stock more than the few days needed to replace it. This is the bookseller's function, and it is of tremendous importance that he fulfill it.

It would be folly for me to enlarge on the matter of store arrangement and display to an audience composed of those in charge of some of the largest and finest bookstores and book departments in the country. The Philadelphia bookstores do credit to their city, and if all localities were equally well served no agitation such as that in which we are engaged would be necessary. In this respect, at least, "Philadelphia is not ninety miles behind New York," as our Pennsylvania Dutch would express it.

The building up of a strong and effective organization is of vital importance in this as in any business. You cannot hope to grow and expand to your own profit and to the betterment of the community unless you are able to get and hold those who will further bulwark your own efforts. We no longer live in a day of one-man business. Such enterprises as the Woolworth five and ten-cent stores, the Wanamaker stores, the American Tobacco Company of lamented memory, are not the result of one man's toil and vigilance, but the monuments of one man's ability to gather round him and hold the efforts of a strong and responsible body of men and women, who could be depended upon to take the proper action on their own initiative when occasion arose.

Salesmanship, as such, is almost a lost science in the book business. We have so long been satisfied to sell the obvious book, the book for which the publisher has created a demand by his advertising, that we have lost the ability to sell anything else. I do not believe that salesmanship is selling under forced pressure or by hypnotic influence that which a person is firmly determined not to buy, and can have no possible need for. I do not believe that salesmanship consists in selling for a large profit that which we know will be of no value to the customer. The book business has so long suffered under the blight of such salesmanship that to try to sell a man a book, no matter how good, is almost a disgrace in the eyes of the community. For so long has the book which carried a working profit been a comparatively worthless book, that the mere effort to sell a book by personal effort immediately brands that book as undesirable.

Recently I sent my outside stationery salesman, who is generally received with courtesy when presenting some new office device, to show Frederick W. Taylor's "Principles of Scientific Management" to the factory people of our town. At evening he returned in disgust and reported that he was generally received with the comment, "What kind of a fellow are you, anyway?" And yet I firmly believe that a great field awaits the bookseller right here. When he can convince his clientage that he is presenting to them, either by mail in personal letters or by actual personal solicitation, only that which is desirable and of which they undoubtedly want to be informed, he will reopen a great field and will eventually exclude the subscription agent, who has taken and still is taking from under the bookseller's nose, a large percentage of the money spent in his community for books.

Book salesmanship requires thorough study, and some concentrated effort should be made along the lines of education both of the employer and employee. Great manufacturing concerns, department stores, insurance companies and the like have taken up the idea of educating their people with a view to increased efficiency. In the combination of booksellers and book departments represented here, I can see a field unsurpassed for educational work. If the Philadelphia Booksellers' Association, and likewise the Booksellers' League, could arrange separately or together a series of educational lectures, a sort of university extension for the development of the employees of all the stores in the trade, the efficiency of the trade as a whole should and would be enormously increased. Lectures on modern salesmanship, applied psychology and kindred subjects should be given by men outside the trade, authorities along their particular lines. A liberal share of the advertising allowance, both of publishers and booksellers, could be advantageously spent in this work for a time.

In the matter of personal salesmanship in and out of the store, the bookseller should be able to score a large one on the department store brethren. In fact, efficiency along one special line must be the keynote of special store development. When you have developed individuality and business character in the type of your salesmanship, your position will be almost invincible. As a matter of fact, manufacturers in all lines, including publishers, have latterly come to realize that the logical, the most consistent and most economical method of marketing goods, of distributing product, is through recognized legitimate trade channels. It is our opportunity to so develop our individual salesmanship and our individual advertising as to make ourselves absolutely essential, and when that point is reached the position of the retail trade will be unapproachable.

The art of advertising the book trade has never been discovered. I say book trade advisedly, as I refer especially to the advertising of the retailer and not of the publisher. I am not here concerned with the publishers' advertising, though I am firmly convinced that the publishers' present methods are wasteful in the extreme. Too much money is spent on duplicated efforts on the trade, libraries and certain professions and classes, and almost nothing is being spent to educate the masses in reading habits. Right here is the bookseller's opportunity, and he seems to have failed so far to have grasped it adequately.

Our show windows are, of course, our greatest asset, and I fear we generally fail to realize, on the other hand, what they cost us. One-third your rental is fairly chargeable to your frontage when located on a main business thoroughfare, and that frontage is your window space. Hesitate before you concede that costly space to the advertising display of one firm, one line of books or one book. Study just what you are to gain by such a display, and analyze your possible advantage as compared with that of the other fellow. Don't forget that your windows are your "front." They are what you show of your business and your methods to get that large proportion of the public whom you never or rarely get inside your store. In proportion to their rental value, no trim is expensive if effective.

Of prime importance, however, in my mind is the value to the retail trade of newspaper publicity, and yet I am surprised to note in your Philadelphia dailies and in the New York dailies how glaringly absent is retail bookstore advertising. Even in the advertising of department stores, the book department is rarely featured. There is too much tendency to depend on the publisher's advertisement with its cold "at all booksellers" in small type at the bottom of the ad. Thousands in this city don't even know the location of a bookstore.

Yet it is through the daily newspapers, and through them only, that you can hope to ever reach that mass of possible readers who never enter a bookstore unless it is to buy a postage stamp. It is through the newspapers, and through them only, that you may ever hope to compete with the lure of the automobile, the opera and the theatre on the one hand, and of the cheap amusement resort on the other. The space may be costly, but I am convinced that steady, persistent advertising of this kind will help to get people into the "bookshop habit" more than any other means that can be devised. And in the growth of this "bookshop habit" there is hope for the trade.

Three-fifths of the population of this city (to state it mildly) never cross the threshold of a bookshop to buy a book for their own reading. And it is by the gradual reduction of this proportion that the book trade, both the publishers and booksellers, must hope to gain.

Some co-operative plan between publisher and bookseller should be devised by means of which the money now being spent by both, largely in duplicated effort, should be invested in an educational campaign to get people into the bookstores, to learn to buy books, not borrow them, to buy books to read, not only to give away. Here, too, is the bookseller's opportunity to make himself indispensable to the publisher, and in this respect, also, does he have an advantage over the department in a large store. Good merchandising, efficient salesmanship, successful advertising, these are the three keys to success in bookselling.

A little boy working in a button factory in New York was employed by a theatrical firm as office boy. At the end of the first week he resigned and no amount of cajolery or offers of increased wages could persuade him to remain. When pressed for his reason he finally reluctantly replied: "De button pusness, dat is a pusness; but de teatrical pusness, dat ain't no pusness at all." Much the same could have been said of the book business until very recently.

A publisher recently wrote for a leading weekly an article which you doubtless have all read entitled, "The Worst Business in the World." But he is wrong. The publication and distribution of books, in which the publishers and ourselves are jointly engaged, is the best business in the world. Perhaps not so from the mere standpoint of making money. But, as in other underpaid professions, much of the reward we receive must come from a feeling of satisfaction that we are doing a little more than our share in the uplifting of our fellows.

The invention of the art of printing, bringing into existence the joint businesses of publishing and bookselling, was the signal for the annihilation of those ages of darkness that had obscured the world for centuries. It was the opening gun fired in the struggle for liberty, and no small part has our kindred craft played in that struggle.

The early bookseller occupied a lofty and respected place among his fellows, and it is to be hoped that the modern bookseller will soon regain a small measure of self-respect along with the possibilities that are being opened for self-support. Every effort put forth to spread your business, to increase the number of those who read better books and think the cleaner, nobler thought inspired by those books, is an effort for the benefit of your fellow men, and a substantial increase in your advertising allowance might very properly be charged to "charity," for "charity begins at home."

Some one has told the story of the little Quaker boy who tried to lift himself by his own boot-straps, but failed until with another er's assistance they managed to lift each other and surmount the obstacle. Each bookseller, alone, is unable to lift higher his craft and his business, so let us all go out from this meeting and from every other meeting determined to boost the book business. Don't knock your fellows, but boost, boost, boost the business, your business, my business, our business, and in a few years from now we can smile and say, "In every sense of the word, it's the best business in the world."

HAMPTON-COLUMBIAN MAGAZINE TO BE SOLD.

THE Hampton-Columbian Magazine, whose short but checkered financial career has been reviewed in the past few weeks, will be sold at public auction at an early date.

An order to show cause why the assets and good-will of the Columbian-Sterling Publishing Company should not be sold has been made to the United States District Court, Southern District of New York. The order is returnable before Stanley W. Dexter, Esq., referee in bankruptcy, at his office, 71 Broadway, New York City, November 6, at 2 P.M.

Bids will be invited and will be submitted to the court. The nature of the assets are such that an immediate sale will be necessary.

Information regarding the property may be had of the receiver, A. Gordon Murray, 60 Wall Street, New York City. The Hampton-Columbian Magazine is undoubtedly still a valuable property, and the sale will be looked forward to with interest.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECT OF CONSOLIDATION?

REPEATED instances during the past year of consolidation of companies publishing monthly periodicals make it right, says The Fourth Estate editorially, a propos of an editorial statement in the Christian Science Monitor, to speak of them with the term "movement" or "trend." In as much as some of the magazines that have merged have been conspicuous for exposing the unfortunate ethical results of combination in other lines of business, it is not surprising that there should be some solicitude among their readers as to what the effect of the process is to be upon the policy of journals that have been insurgent in temper.

It is most interesting to note that the reason given for the consolidation is economic, precisely as it is in connection with woolen mills or steel furnaces. The stockholders, who by the way multiply in number, are thus assured of larger dividends. Nothing is said about the inevitable loss of personality and distinct province which such merging implies; or the lesson that incorporation and scattering of ownership in daily papers has taught, as to the precise ratio between increase of expectant dividend recipients and tenuity in shaping editorial policy if it happens to conflict with income.

The part played by the monthly magazines during the past decade in shaping national public opinion has been important. Some of them evidently in the near future are to be less influential and less popular, and also less attractive as advertising mediums. Others of them that have been more conservative in method and less intrusive on the distinct field of the weeklies and dailies are less likely to be affected by any stress that may lie ahead for periodical publishers.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA.

A MEETING of the Booksellers' Association of Philadelphia was held on Friday evening, October 27, in Franklin Inn Club Building. Dinner was served at 6:30 and was followed by the reading of papers on "The Present Golden Opportunity: How to Make the Best of It," by Eugene L. Herr, of L. B. Herr & Son, Lancaster, Pa., and Walter S. Lewis, of Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia. Although not down on the regular programme, Herbert G. Stockwell, author of "Elements of Business Character," made an excellent and practical address that was fully appreciated.

POSTAL MATTERS.

POSTAL BUREAU OF INFORMATION.

THE newspaper and periodical publishers may have a bureau of information on their postal affairs at Washington, and may also publish a journal on the subject, if the proposition of the Publishers' Commission decided upon at the meeting held September 20 is carried out. Representatives from the following associations were present: The National Fraternal Press Association, the Federation of Trades Press Association, the Ohio Buckeye Press Association and the Weekly Country Press of other states, the National Catholic Editors' Association and the United Typothetæ of America. It is the purpose to enlarge this commission by representatives from other organizations.

EXPRESS COMPANIES WILL FIGHT PARCELS POST.

REPRESENTATIVES of railroad interests now in Washington express the opinion that the roads will make no effort to oppose the development and adoption of parcels post legislation at the coming session of Congress. They assert that the railroads, after due consideration, believe that action on their part would not be wise and that they have determined, therefore, to allow the discussion to take its course except in so far as they may be called upon for information. It is learned, however, that the railroads are, through the Bureau of Railway Economics which they maintain in this city, making a careful analysis of the effect of parcels post legislation upon their duties as carriers and upon the cost of transporting mail. The results of the inquiry will not be given out for a good while, probably not until the winter's discussion is well under way.

The express companies are expected to stand the burden of the opposition to parcels post. It is stated by the railway men that undoubtedly the companies will do their utmost to block the proceedings, although in the judgment of the roads this is hardly wise. At present the indications are favorable to an overwhelming demand for parcels post legislation, and in case such legislation should be reported by the House committee on post offices and post roads it would get a start that could hardly be checked in the House, as the measure is popular with the membership. The express companies would then be obliged to concentrate their antagonism in the Senate, where it would be much easier to follow their operations.

ANNUAL BOOK EXHIBITION.

THE sixth annual exhibition of the books of the year will be held from November 8 to November 30, in the galleries of the National Arts Club, Gramercy Park, New York, from 10 A.M. until 6 P.M. daily.

George Sylvester Viereck will make the opening address upon the opening of the exhibition, Wednesday, November 8, at 9 o'clock.

OBITUARY NOTES.

S. G. SIMMONS, a bookdealer of Montecano, Wash., died on October 12.

HENRY BOHN, son of the founder of Bohn's Libraries, died October 9. Mr. Bohn's mother was the daughter of William Simpkin, senior partner of Simpkin, Marshall & Company. At the age of seven Bohn was translating the Greek Testament, and when only a youth entered his father's business. Later, when a partner in the firm, he was responsible for the production in England of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The book had not fulfilled its expectations in this country, and his father decided not to publish it unless his son so decided. Henry Bohn sat up the whole of one night reading it, and was so impressed with its possibilities that he journeyed up to town from Twickenham in the small hours of the morning to place it in the hands of the printers.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

JOSEPH PULITZER, the proprietor of the New York World, died on his yacht in the harbor of Charleston, S. C., on Sunday, October 29. Mr. Pulitzer was one of the great forces of American journalism. In 1883 he bought the New York World from Jay Gould, an almost moribund paper, and electrified it into life. He was a man of extraordinary intellectual force, breadth of mind and wide interest in social questions, with an accurate appreciation of their bearing on politics. He was indifferent to wealth save as a means of serving ideas and satisfying intense curiosity about life. He did untiring work for the cause of international peace. The great editors on both sides of the world are testifying to his great genius as a journalist. Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, proprietor of The Tribune; Lord Northcliffe, principal owner of the London Times; H. W. Massingham, editor of The Nation; David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the great French, German and Austrian journals all point out his great dominant personal force by which he controlled his paper to the end in spite of the tragical limitations caused by his blindness and his weak physique.

Mr. Pulitzer was born at Budapest, Hungary, on April 10, 1847. In 1864 he emigrated to Boston; he served a short time in the Federal army and at the close of the war went west and began his successful career in St. Louis. Mr. Pulitzer has endowed a School of Journalism, which will be opened shortly in Columbia University. It is to have a building of its own, and the bequest upon which it can draw amounts to $2,000,000.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

WE understand that the December number of The American will contain a new Sherlock Holmes story complete in that number. H. G. Wells's new novel, "Marriage," is also running in The American.

THE Hill Publishing Company, of New York City, have added a new one to their list of trade publications, The Coal Age, a weekly. The October number, the initial issue, is a substantial quarto, illustrated.

Motography, a new monthly periodical with which is incorporated the Nickelodeon, gives periodical accounts of all the newest features in cinematography generally, with occasional technical papers on kindred subjects here and abroad.

P. F. MADIGAN, the New York rare-book man, announces the first issue of a little house organ, The Autograph, to be devoted to pushing his sales and the publication of notes of interest to autograph collectors. Vol. 1, No. 1, is a 16-page small quarto. A subscription price of $1 a year is quoted, and doubtless many autograph collectors will find it worth the money.

W. R. HEARST has bought the Los Angeles Herald, the oldest morning paper in that city, in order to obtain an Associated Press franchise for his Examiner. The Herald plant will be transferred to a syndicate and will become an evening paper. These changes are the result of a bitter newspaper war which has been in progress for many months between Mr. Hearst and Gen. H. G. Otis, owner of the Los Angeles Times, on one side and E. T. Earl, proprietor of the Evening Express, and the recently established Morning Tribune on the other. The Herald will be used to fight the Express in the evening field. The price for the paper was not stated.

PERSONAL NOTES.

RUPERT THOMAS, of the advertising staff of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, has been ill for several weeks with poison ivy poisoning.

WILLIAM FARQUHAR PAYSON, author of "Periwinkle," "Barry Gordon," etc., will return from London, where he has been for some time as the representative of Sturgis & Walton Company, in late October.

MELANCTHON M. HURD, the veteran Boston publisher, and Mrs. Hurd on October 15 last celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary at their home at Intervale, N. H. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY takes pleasure in extending to them the congratulations of the trade.

MRS. CORRA HARRIS, author of "Eve's Second Husband" and "The Circuit Rider's Wife," whose latest book, "The Recording Angel," is to be brought out this winter by Doubleday, Page & Co., is spending the autumn months travelling in Spain. Mrs. Harris has been in England and France.

RICHARD LE GALLIENNE, the poet, was married at Rowayton, Conn., October 27, to Mrs. Irma Perry. Charles Hanson Towne, editor of The Designer, was best man. Miss Julie Norregard, Mr. Le Gallienne's second wife, obtained a divorce from him last July. The bride was the first wife of R. Hinton Perry, the sculptor, who went to Ludlow street jail in 1909 rather than pay her alimony.

HAROLD S. BUTTENHEIM, for the last two years manager of Iron Age-Hardware, has just severed his connection with the David Williams Company, New York City, to become editor of The American City. Mr. Buttenheim purchased recently, with his brother, Edgar J. (formerly circulation manager of the David Williams Company), the magazine called The American City, established in New York some two years ago, and published at 93 Nassau Street. The business management will be under his brother's direction.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. B. DE ZOYSA, Colombo, Ceylon, wishes reports of old books on Ceylon, such as Knox's "Ceylon," Baldaeus's "Ceylon," etc.

OWEN JOHNSON's new story, "Dink Stover at Yale," which is making a sensation as a serial in McClure's, will be published in book form by Frederick A. Stokes Company next spring.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just published "The Sunday-night Evangel," a series of popular discourses preached at Independence Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Kansas City, Mo., by Dr. Louis Albert Banks.

THE committee in charge of mission work among the Eskimos at Cape York have refused to accept the proceeds of the lecture which Dr. Frederick A. Cook delivered, amid an uproar, at Copenhagen a week ago Tuesday.

"THE SMILE OF THE SPHINX," by Marguerite Bouvet, just published by A. C. McClurg & Co., is a simple love story of the old-fashioned type, with the scenes laid in Baltimore. Miss Bouvet will be remembered for her many charming books for children, notably "Sweet William."

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the publication of "When Woman Proposes," by Anne Warner, her publishers, Little, Brown & Co., announced a sixteenth printing of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," by the same author. Anne Warner has now taken up her permanent residence in England.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY is the publisher of "Philip Steele," James Oliver Curwood's romance of the Canadian Royal Mounted Police. The young hero, son of a Chicago millionaire, tired of the close life of cities, joins this famous body and earns the name of always bringing in his man.

AN English edition of Henry C. Shelley's "The British Museum: Its History and Treasures" is appearing with Sir Isaac Pitman & Son, London, who report the work in excellent demand. The American publishers, L. C. Page & Company, have already announced a second edition.

"THE CORSICAN," a diary of Napoleon, compiled and translated by Prof. R. M. Johnston, which Houghton Mifflin Company recently brought out in this country, has been published in England by the Macmillans, and a French edition will be issued by Vallette during the coming winter.

HENRY PARKS WRIGHT, dean of Yale College from 1884 to 1909, has written "From School to College," a book in which he embodies suggestions for young men that his long and active life among students makes particularly valuable. They have been tested and have been found helpful. The Yale University Press is the publisher.

OWING to large advance orders, the Stewart & Kidd Company, Cincinnati, have been compelled to again postpone the publication date of "George Bernard Shaw: His Life and Works," a critical biography, authorized, by Archibald Henderson, until November 20. Books will positively be ready for dealers at least two days in advance of publication.

A. C. McCLURG & COMPANY have had Mrs. McCarter's little book, "The Peace of Solomon Valley," on the press practically continuously since the book was issued a few weeks ago. A fourth edition of 5000 copies is just ready, and the orders from all parts of the country are coming in almost faster than they can be taken care of.

UNDER the sobriquet of the Tamalpais Series, Paul Elder & Company, San Francisco, announce a series of small books which will make admirable little gifts. The first volumes are to be: "Obil, Keeper of Camels," by Lucia Chase Bell; "The Potato Child and Others," by Mrs. Charles J. Woodbury; and "The Tahquitch Maiden," by Phebe Estelle Spalding.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS now issue editions de luxe of their standard authors. The books are beautifully printed on Nelson's India paper and bound in full black genuine morocco, with red under gold edges. There is a specially designed gold back and side stamp for each author. The size of the volumes makes them easy to hold, and they are altogether satisfactorily and handsomely made books.

KING GEORGE V. is to enter the ranks of authorship with a volume of public addresses that is soon to be published under the title, "The King to His People." The volume is to include the celebrated "Wake up, England," speech. As prince and king the present monarch's utterances have been marked by forcefulness, sincerity, a sound common sense, and a happy gift of literary expression.

"AN AMERICAN IN GERMANY" is the title of a German conversation book by E. E. Pattou, about to be published by D. C. Heath & Company, Boston. It consists of nearly fifty conversations introducing the American to a wide variety of experiences in Germany. The book contains a wealth of everyday idioms, and will serve for class use in conversational German and as a help to tourists in mastering the language of everyday speech.

THE Scribners have just begun the publication of the Viking edition of Ibsen in thirteen volumes. It is edited by William Archer and the translations are mostly by him also. The volumes will be bound in saten cloth and printed on paper specially prepared. The first two appear this month, volume 1 containing "Lady Inger of Ostrat," "The Feast at Solhoug" and "Love's Comedy;" volume 2 containing the "Vikings at Helgeland" and "The Pretenders."

GEORGE W. JACOBS & COMPANY add three books to their juvenile list: "The Polly Page Ranch Club," by Izola L. Forrester, tells of the adventures of the Calvert Hall school girls in Wyoming; "A Dear Little Girl's Summer Holidays," by Amy E. Blanchard, an account of Edna Conway's summer at the shore with her dearest friends to play with; and "Kiddie Rhymes," by Margaret G. Hays, with pictures by Grace G. Wiederseim, a book of verses with many illustrations in color for small people.

AMONG Harper & Brothers' most recent publications are: "The Eternal Feminine," a number of clever monologues by May Isabel Fisk; "The Children's Educational Theatre," an account of its work by the originator, Alice Minnie Herts, with an introduction by Charles W. Eliot; "The Cook Book of Leftovers," by Helen Carroll Clarke and Phoebe Deyo Rulon, a collection of four hundred reliable recipes for the practical housekeeper; and "The Young Lion Hunter," an exciting story of lassoing mountain lions by Zane Grey.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY calls attention to "The Encyclopedia of Sports and Games," a big book of sports by sportsmen for sportsmen whose four volumes treat of every branch of the subject. They also call particular attention to two important biographies, "Life of James McNeill Whistler," by Elizabeth R. and Joseph Pennell, not a new edition of this authorized life, but really a new book to which much has been added; and "The True Daniel Webster," by Sydney George Fisher, a history of the man telling facts without fear or favor and giving much information.

DOES the veil of the prophet hang over John Stuart Thomson, whose book, "The Chinese," was published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company over a year ago? It is coincidental, to say the least, that Mr. Thomson, in speaking of a probable revolution in China, selected Sun Yat Sen as the revolutionary leader, though he had nothing on which to base the assertion other than a knowledge of the man's characteristics. The newspapers of to-day are devoting a great deal of attention to Sun Yat Sen, who has developed into exactly the sort of leader Mr. Thomson prophesied he would be.

AN important work embodying the results of Lord Carnarvon's long explorations at Thebes is announced by Mr. Frowde. It is entitled "Four Years' Excavations at Thebes," by the Earl of Carnarvon and Howard Carter, with chapters by F. L. Griffith, George Legrain, Dr. Moller, Professor Newberry and Professor Spiegelberg. The volume contains an account and translation of the important historical tablet relating to the wars of the Theban kings of the seventeenth dynasty with their Hyksos suzerains which resulted in the final overthrow of the latter. Crown folio in size, the book will contain a photographure frontispiece and over seventy full-page illustrations, prepared at the Oxford University Press.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have ready "France and the French," by Charles Darnley, a picture of the modern French people founded on personal observation and inspired by sympathy; "The Autobiographic Memoirs" of Frederic Harrison, a two-volume work covering the years 1831-1910, in the life of a man who, honorary fellow of Wadham College, Oxford, has been in touch with all the sociological reform movements of his day and known many famous people; "Fairies Afield" contains four stories by Mrs. Molesworth, with illustrations by Gertrude Duncan Hammond; and a new boxed edition of "Two Years Before the Mast," with an introduction by Sir Wilfred Grenfell and illustrations in color by Charles Pears.

IN "Selections [from Browning]," to be published by the Cambridge University Press, there is promised a reference to the source, hitherto undetected, whence the poet drew the material for one of his most famous shorter poems, "A Grammarian's Funeral." It gives a clue to a question sometimes debated as to whether the "revival of learning" of which the sub-title of the poem speaks is that of Italy or Germany. Some other of the curious scraps of learning which are scattered about Browning's poems are traced back to the same original. The text of the "Selections" has been edited by W. T. Young (joint editor of the Cambridge Anthologies), who has also written a full introduction and notes.

THE Fuchs & Lang Manufacturing Company, of New York, have just published a translation, the first, we believe, in English, of Alois Senefelder's own story of "The Invention of Lithography," first published in Munich in 1821. Of prime importance as this printing process already is, the development of offset printing in all its various forms, itself a species of lithography, promises to make it even more a factor in modern printing. For this reason the inventor's own story of his efforts and eventual success should be of particular interest to printers and publishers generally, and has well deserved this adequate and even sumptuous English form. The translation has been done by J. W. Muller, and the book, a wide-margined quarto, bears a portrait of Senefelder as its frontispiece.

FOR twenty-five years M. Paoli, whose volume of personal reminiscences of the kings and queens of Europe Sturgis & Walton Company announce for publication this month, under the title "Their Majesties as I Knew Them," has been intrusted with the delicate duty of guarding the persons of monarchs who go to France for recreation, and fifteen emperors and kings, a half dozen empresses and queens, and unnumbered grand dukes and princes of the blood have been safeguarded by him. This same house also publishes Ralph D. Paine's "The Book of Buried Treasure," an account of many a quest for that fascinating thing, lost treasure, in all parts of the world; and "The Heart of Youth, Poems Gay and Grave for Young People," edited by Jeannette L. Gilder, with an introduction by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett.

A propos of Lord Rosebery's recent address of whimsical condemnation of libraries, a correspondent of the Athenaeum writes: "Why do not Lord Rosebery and those who share his views on the superfluity of books go to the root of the matter and openly attack those who are responsible for the printing and publishing of matter which, if not actually pernicious, is useless? I know of a case in which a printer described a book which he had undertaken to print as 'piffle,' but excused himself by saying he had glanced at it and found there was nothing actively harmful. When master printers and publishers refuse to degrade those under them by making them work at what they would be ashamed to be found reading at their leisure, we may hope to have necessary work put in hand rather than 'muck.'"

WM. R. REINICK, of the Free Library of Philadelphia, is preparing a paper upon "Books as a Source of Disease" to be read before the next International Congress of Hygiene. He respectfully requests the readers of this note to send him an account of any cases of disease the sources of which have been traced to books or papers. He would also further request information where illness or even death has been caused by the poisons used in book-making. All the information possible is wanted to present as complete a paper as possible. As in the case of insects which we now know to be "carriers of disease," it is first necessary to collect scattered evidence in order to show that there is real danger in books, and this will compel better care to be taken of libraries and books and help to improve the health of mankind.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just completed the publication of one of their sets in the Library of Modern Authors, and have just begun the publication of another. The new set is the Viking edition of Ibsen in thirteen volumes. The set completed is the very successful memorial edition of George Meredith. Volume 27, the last, containing a complete bibliography and showing alterations and deletions made by the author in various earlier editions, has just been published. In early November they will publish Ernest Thompson Seton's new book, "Arctic Prairies," Brigadier-General Frederick Funston's "Memories of Two Wars," a new and beautifully illustrated edition of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," Frank Abbott's "The Common People of Ancient Rome," a new edition of Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer's "Referendum in America," which has been greatly enlarged, and is now entitled "The Referendum, Initiative, and Recall in America."

THE new books to be published by John Lane Company this week are among their most important this autumn. Eden Phillpotts is represented with another of his soul-and-body studies of Dartmoor, "The Beacon"; and Dolf Wyllarde, who gained popularity through "The Riding Master," has a new novel, "The Unofficial Honeymoon," which is fully up to the standard of her best previous work; "A Touch of Fantasy," a romance for those who are lucky enough to wear glasses, by Arthur H. Adams, author of "Galahad Jones"; and "The Chronicles of Clovis," by Hector H. Monroe, a new humorist, complete the Lane fiction for this week. Anatole France has a fairy story for children, "Honey Bee." The translation was made by Mrs. John Lane, and the twelve full-page color illustrations were drawn by Florence Lundborg. Among the miscellaneous new Lane books are "Napoleon and King Murat," a biography compiled from hitherto unknown and unpublished documents, by Albert Espitalier, translated from the French by J. Lewis May; "The Wife of General Bonaparte," by Joseph Turquan, author of "The Love Affairs of Napoleon," translated from the French by Violette Montagu; "Undiscovered Russia," by Stephen Graham, author of "A Vagabond in the Caucasus"; "The Magic of Spain," by A. F. G. Bell, a volume giving glimpses of rural Spain which are not to be found in the guide books; and "Peasant Art in Austria and Hungary," the special autumn number of "The International Studio," edited by Charles Holme.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOOKS WANTED

Under this head booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withdrawing their use from irresponsible advertisers, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

The Big Book of Sports

By Sportsmen for Sportsmen

The Encyclopedia of Sports and Games

Every Branch of Sport and Outdoor Games Thoroughly Described

Polo, Golf, Tennis, Baseball, Football, Lacrosse, Hockey, Hunting, Fishing, Yachting, Motoring, Fencing, Boxing, etc.

Every sportsman will prize this work because it contains information which has been collected from many sources, and which is written by experts from first hand knowledge. Although it is an encyclopedia, yet the true spirit of sport permeates the work, for each sport is dealt with by sportsmen for sportsmen from their point of view. Records, statistics, are carefully chronicled and all the information it contains is accurate and up-to-date. Laws, too, of every game and sport are dealt with and given at full length. Yet it is far from being merely a book of records and statistics. It is alive by reason of descriptive writing by men whose names are familiar to everyone as leaders in the realms of sports.

SPECIAL FEATURES

New pictures on every branch of sport. Over 2000 illustrations in all, many elaborate action photographs in color, special articles by experts. A natural history of all the birds and beasts of the chase.

Complete in 4 large octavo volumes. Richly bound in cloth, gilt top, $12.00 net

TWO IMPORTANT BIOGRAPHIES

THE AUTHORIZED LIFE OF WHISTLER

Life of James McNeill Whistler

By
ELIZABETH R. and JOSEPH PENNELL

This is not only a new edition, but really a new book

The Pennells have thoroughly culled the material in their former edition and added much new matter, which for lack of space they were unable to incorporate in the elaborate two-volume edition recently published, and which is now out of print. It is fully illustrated from 96 plates reproduced after Whistler's famous paintings.

Crown 8vo. Whistler binding, deckle edge, $3.50 net. Three-quarters grain levant, $7.50 net

The True Daniel Webster

By
SYDNEY GEORGE FISHER, Litt.D., LL.D.

This new biography of an immortal American is a valuable addition to The True Biography Series.

When Daniel Webster's name is mentioned it recalls to every one his triumphant reply to Hayne in defence of the Union and Constitution, which closes with the following sentiment dear to every true American heart: "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable"

Mr. Fisher has given us a true history of the life of this great man, telling facts without fear or favor and giving much new information. He has also gathered in this volume many portraits and scenes of Webster's environment never before published.

24 illustrations. Octavo. Buckram, gilttop, $2.00 net. Half morocco, $5.00 net
